About the Conference

The National Recreation and Park Association's National Aquatic Conference (NAC) is the premier venue for aquatic professionals in the nation. Drawing hundreds of attendees annually from all areas of aquatics, NAC provides attendees with the tools, concepts and resources to be effective and successful in the challenging aquatics environment. With the combination of leading-edge peer-reviewed education programming and a powerful tradeshow, attendees walk away with the knowledge to apply current trends and best practices towards a more cost effective, efficient, and safety oriented operations.

Don't miss very special Keynote Jim Ellis, subject of the major motion picture PRIDE about Ellis' contributions to the Philadelphia Department of Recreation (PDR) swim team and the obstacles he and his swimmers had to overcome.

Who Should Attend

The National Aquatic Conference provides targeted learning opportunities specifically for directors, managers and staff in all areas of aquatics and aquatic recreation including park directors and managers, recreation directors and managers, camp directors and managers, plus pool operators in hotels, universities and private communities.

National Aquatic Management School

About the School

The National Aquatic Management School (NAMS) is a three-year program. NAMS is designed to progressively educate aquatic professionals using a focused approach. The program provides:

- *structured curriculum
- *specific learning outcomes
