Haycamo Brewery would be a great addition to the Rapid City community. We have nothing like them in the area, this would bring many tourists to Rapid City. We don't want one open in one of the surrounding tourist towns, bring them here with Haycamp! Think of all the rally people it would bring to RC.

Thanks

To whom it may concern,

My name is Adam Haave. I am a PA here in town and happen to love craft beers. This brewing company would be a great addition to our newly revitalized city.

Thanks for your consideration,

Hello!

I just want to voice my support for Hay Camp Brewery this week. I am a pharmacist at a small, independent business. Over the course of my education I have lived in some amazing areas, all of which supported and fostered the growth of unique, local businesses. Allowing new small businesses the chance to grow in our downtown area energizes our city, and I believe attracts more young professionals to an area that previously has been pretty stale. I am voicing support for Hay Camp, and also for future entrepreneurs who would like to see Rapid City become an area known for learning, the arts, and our beautiful environment.

Thanks!

Good evening,

My name is Suzanne Roth and I am a pediatric resident at the San Antonio Military Medical Center and a Captain in the United States Army. I am also a South Dakota native, born and raised in Sioux Falls, but was fortunate to spend two years of my medical training in Rapid City. During my time there, I fell in love with the community and small businesses. Rapid City truly has talent that one often only finds in larger cities, but maintains the atmosphere of a small, supportive community where young adults can begin their careers, start their families, and thrive.

My husband is from Boise, Idaho, and as I said, I am from Sioux Falls. We are both Army physicians, he in orthopedics and myself in pediatrics. Our careers will undoubtedly take us in directions we can't even imagine at this point. However, we spend considerable time discussing where we might end up to practice following our military service. Time and time again, Rapid City is first on our list. Even in our short time there, we found ourselves adopted into an exciting group of bright, diverse, and highly educated young professionals and we can't wait to return to see how this generation continues to mold Rapid City and grow along with it.

Support Hay Camp. Support keeping young talent in Rapid City. Believe me, young talent and skilled professionals want to stay (or in my case, return when we can), and it is absolutely because of the individuals who share their skills with their neighbors and community. Please help this new business contribute to the success of Rapid City!

Sincerely,
Dr. Suzanne M Roth

To Whom it May Concern:

My name is Sam Lane, a PhD student in chemical and biological engineering at South Dakota School of Mines and Technology and amateur homebrewer, and I am writing you in support of Hay Camp Brewing. I know both Karl Koth and Sam Papendick personally work with Sam and SDSM&T. I have also helped them brew some of their beers, and they have taught me many things about brewing and I have invested money into their ventures. They are very generous, fun, and kind people and I can't think of a better group of people to own a local business.

As for the brewing, I have tried several of their beers, all of which are fantastic. They have a combined experience of over 15 years of brewing, which can be tasted in all of their beers. I have learned a lot from them and know firsthand that they are knowledgeable about brewing and are very passionate about the craft. I also believe that the Rapid City community would be well served with a local brewery that focuses on the beer and not everything else.

Both Sam and Karl having an engineering background, helping them become very innovative. They are currently looking into a way to recycle their grains to produce methane in an anaerobic digester. They have created/built some of their own equipment to produce better beer more efficiently. I am quite sure that they will continue to find ways to better their beers and their environmental impact.

I also know they want to stay small and local, focusing on serving Rapid City and surrounding communities. This also means that they will invest in the Rapid City community.

In conclusion, no two people deserve more support than Karl and Sam. Hay Camp Brewing deserves the support of the planning commission due to their new business ideas, innovation, and community investment. Please say yes to their project so we can add fantastic beers and a fantastic company to the community.

Thank You,

Sam Lane

I fully support these young mens start into the business world. Micro brewery"s have become very popular in many cities, and are a nice option to the standard bar and grill. I would encourage your approval of their application. Dr. Chuck Anderson

To whom it may concern,

I am writing in support of Hay Camp Brewing Co. proposal to set up and operate a miro-brewery in Rapid City.

Hay Camp would be great for the city, great for its residence and great amenity for seasonal visitors to the Black Hills.

Not a bar, Hay Camp would be a great experience for people, to really learn about beer and the brewing process! Karl and Sam have some the best and most enthusiastic knowledge of beer and are excited to share it with everyone. Hay Camp would offer a great resource for serious home brewers or just the casual pedestrian looking to learn about this long celebrated technique.

Please take this into consideration and give two thumbs up for Hay Camp!!

Sincerely,

Sam Koth

Dear Planning Commission Members:

Please support the staff recommendation for approval of the Planned Development application submitted by Hay Camp Brewing Company to establish a micro-brewery. I see this as a very nice addition to the growing list of places to visit and things to do in Rapid City. When I visit other towns and cities around the country I seek out the local craft brewery or tap room to learn more about the local area and to see the way these small breweries set up operations. The interest in craft brewing is growing rapidly at the national level. Many towns are known for the local craft beers. It would be great if Rapid City could join this growing trend nationally and regionally with a micro-brewery. Craft brewery focused vacations are already a reality for many people as evidenced by the guidebooks that are regularly updated to help visitors plan vacation routes. Successful examples of very small breweries with limited operating hours similar to what Hay Camp proposes are already present in Buffalo, Wyoming and in multiple locations in Iowa.

Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully,

Ron Koth
