ADULT ART ADVENTURES

For people of a certain age with leisure time in the afternoon to visit an artists studio in Hill City, take in the art collection at Wall Drug or enjoy a conversation with an artist currently exhibiting in one of the Dahl Arts Center galleries. This program gives seniors and retired members of our community an opportunity to grow and learn in the arts while meeting old and new friends.

Why ART?

- Arts education helps children become more confident, builds concentration, improves cognitive abilities, math scores and critical thinking strategies
- Art moves children from passive learning to active learning
- Art encourages dialogue in a creative and non-threatening manner, and encourages artistic expression by discovering and embracing the difference and similarities between people and cultures
- Teens exposed to the arts are more likely to graduate high school and go on to higher education
- Arts education teaches flexibility and problem solving, make us better communicators and innovators
- Adults are better able to compete in a rapidly evolving global economy that demands creative problem solving
- Art stimulates cognitive faculties and improves the quality of life for seniors

A community with the arts at its core is healthier.

The arts attract business, economic development and tourism; improve the quality of life for every segment of the population; entice families to relocate and strengthen our work force; provide jobs, contribute to our local economy and generate tax revenue; build bridges between cultures; and encourages higher civic engagement.
